

Brief Bio

Jim Bell is a clinician and educator, trained first as a Physical Therapist and then a Physician Assistant working in orthopedics and neurosurgery. For five years he served as an assistant professor and full-time faculty member in the PA program at Daemen College and is currently a clinical educator at D'Youville College, both in Buffalo, NY.

He has authored book chapters on remediation of communication skills of medical students and on interdisciplinary team communication in the healthcare setting. Jim is the former Chief Executive Officer of the Institute for Healthcare Communication in USA.